Choices

Choices

The choices we make do not affect us alone. Our decisions affect not only our own futures, but the future of those close to us, and, in turn those close to them, and so on. We are part of a vast web, and strands spread out from each of us, connecting all of humanity.

Others will try to influence the choices we make, for any number of reasons. Some will do it for their own personal gain, others because they believe it will benefit society, still others because they think they know what's best for you. Whatever their motives, we should listen to their advice and weigh its merit carefully. In the end, however, the final decision must be ours. Since we are the ones who must take the responsibility, we are the ones who must make the choices.

Dressed to kill, Alan Maziarz, offers his help.

Grateful for their open, Emily Daniell, Rebecca Owens, Caitlin Bernhard, Jenny Lemeshow and Danielle Margalit relax in the front lobby.

These juniors, Mariah Peelle, Adria Picciucto, Monica Bhowmik and Hillary Wilbur can have fun anywhere.

Aspiring auto mechanic, Matt Price putters with the cars inner anatomy.

In Foods class, Manny DeJesus and Tory Chlanda prepare to bake muffins.

With the help of Blanche Derby, sophomores Elnie Gillers begins printing a month of the calendar.

Auto shop teacher, Randy Prescott and senior Shanti Stark look over this truck engine during Auto class.

Electives

The best classes are the ones you get to pick for yourself, your electives, and Amherst Regional High School is unusual in the wide range of electives that it offers. Most people that hear what classes I am taking think they sound more like what one would get to take in college than in high school. In fact, even the students say they really enjoyed their elective courses. Molly Karlin class of 1996 says, "We're given a lot of choices, and we can learn about many new things." From electronics to pottery there is an elective for everyone. Senior Beth Hooper says, "We are very lucky. My friends in other schools have English 101-104 in a set order in high school and none of the social studies course choices. We have a half year on the Holocaust while others get two weeks." But I think Melissa Ruiz says it most poignantly when she talks about the selection of electives, "It's great!" Touching words from the class of '94.

Cynthia Gordon ('94)

During band, percussionists Tony Bak and Toby Susse, concentrate on the music.

Our World

Q: What do the Common, Antonio's, Amherst College, Bonducci's, Jones Library, Bart's UMass, Hasting's and Bruegger's Bagels all have in common?

A: You will always be able to find an Amherst Regional student there or close by. "Town" as it has been dubbed is the section of business area from Amherst Common to the High School and has been the all time "hangout" ever since "hanging" became cool.

Perhaps you may ask why so many of the above mentioned are eateries. Well, the answer is simple — students are hungry! Whether it is from Bonducci's, Classe Cafe, or Bruegger's, breakfast is still the most important meal of the day, especially that all important caffeine to kick you into gear. Then at lunch, Antonio's offers a slice of pizza and small drink all for a dollar. Great for students on a budget! Dairy Mart on the corner of Triangle Street gets the biggest lunch crowd though, because it is so close, and carries almost everything!

After school many of us go to work. Hasting's, the Jones Library, and Amherst College are only a few of the local businesses that employ Amherst Regional students.

Weekends always find Amherst students doing something, whether it be work, play, or something in between. One might spend a leisurely morning enjoying the fresh air and a great book in front of Bart's, or join "Friends of the Homeless" in a campaign to fight the oppression of poverty. It is not uncommon to find high school and college students playing a game of Ultimate frisbee together on the common. Taking in a free concert at UMass, or shopping in the Carriage Shops could easily fill anyone's afternoon.

Life in Amherst can be called anything except boring. If you really want to you can easily find something you enjoy between the town, the colleges, and our own ARHS, there is a wealth of opportunities and choices here for all of us.

Lyn Czerwonka ('94)

Trying the "New place" Jessica Whittemore and Emily Cayer discuss whether or not to eat at Mediterranean Cafe.

Enjoying the nice day, Eliza Bradley and Ananda Khalsa are "hanging" downtown.

Spending some time with a good book, Eric Burnham relaxes on the lawn in front of the school.

Pizza from Antonio's, a great lunch! Susan Carey and Lavonne Shepard on their way back to school.

On their way to school, Chris Stidsen and Joshua Brandt enjoy a cup of coffee.

Obeying "Open Campus Rule #14" (see page 52 of the Student Handbook), Seniors Laura Feldman, Rachel Jones and Loren Frant cut throught the cemetary on their way to town.

At the Classe Cafe, Kara Willett and Marlowe Knipes, enjoy their breakfast.

Helping their Wrestling Team, Nate Goodwin and Matt Perchemlides collect donations outside a local store.

Seniors Abby Elbow, Sadie Burnham, and Damon Nalle serve up lasagna at the dinner put on for the class of 1993 last June.

National Honor Society members Sarah Torrey and Emily Shore help fill the bags that are distributed to the elderly.

Members of the National Honor Society help unload the food truck at the Bangs Center.

Giving To Others

Amherst Regional High School students are truly an amazing bunch. They are able to balance extracurricular and academic choices, and many of them still find time to volunteer. Those that do decide to volunteer have a tremendous number of choices. Many decide to be companions to the elderly. National Honor Society members help to brown-bag at the Bangs Center to help feed older men and women. Others try to make the day a little better for children at day-care centers and become role models for kids who might otherwise have not one to look up to. There are special events that some people participate in to benefit others thoughout the year. One can take part in Shelter Sunday, held in early October, which helps the homeless in the area. Others can help raise money for the A.B.C. (A Better Chance) House by taking part in the annual walk.

Volunteer work is very important for those that are involved. For many, it is as big a part of their lives as sports or clubs. As one senior said, "It is a great feeling to know you're helping out someone who needs it."

Brendan McKenna ('94)

After filling the bags with food, Lena Fletcher, Felix Yin and other NHS members load them in cars for distribution.

Volunteering at the senior dinner (for the class of '93) means a good time for Neill Fleming and Kristin Brunelle.

Summer

"Summer came and went without a warning." All ARHS students did something different this summer. But we can all agree that school started way too soon. Sure we wanted to see our classmates again, but who can forget the sun, the beach, friends, vacations, Wednesday night movies, going to campus, working at camps, Legion games, college visits, Bay States, watching Beavis and Butthead, Antonio's, partying and — unfortunately — for many of us jobs. Well, we certainly left our mark — we covered all 50 states as well as all the continents . . . okay, not Antarctica. Some of us prepared for our future, like a '94 student who went to Gallaudet University (for the Deaf) and some of us enriched our minds like a member of the class of '96 who "learned how to bleat like a goat." So while the shorts and bathing suits may be gone for awhile, our memories are here to stay, as we look forward to next summer with anticipation.

Risha Hess ('94)

Fire! Fire! seniors Jason Root and Henry Wang camp at Promise Land State Park in Pennsylvania.

Working on their tans, juniors Lauren Schweid and Molly Stebbins spend a day at Long Beach, New York.

Enjoying the last few days of summer before senior year, Sophie King and Suzanne Donoghue vacation in Maine.

Stress of senior life pushed Senior Rachel Agoglia out on a limb.

Back from a day of fishing, BJ Harris and Jake Plotnick show off their big catch.

In front of the Hard Rock Cafe in Tel Aviv, Israel, Doreth Peleg and Noa Bolozky enjoy their summer.l

Chillin' during open are seniors, Ananda Khalsa and Eden Marland.

Working on his Senior Superlative campaign, Sam Kline flirts with Rachel Jones.

Seniors Lisa Gruber and Jeff Watson ponder the meaning of life.

Wow, look at Greg Fitzpatrick pumping those pecs in the new weight room.

Arriving at school, senior Karen Kirchhoff shows her disbelief at being back in school.

Seniors

Six years ago we met for the first time as the class of '94. At first we were little seventh graders, searching for a place to "fit in". By the time we were ninth graders, however, the Junior High was our kingdom. Then everyone told us it was time for us to move to the High School. We eagerly left for summer vacation, not thinking twice about what that meant.

When the last days of summer dwindled away we found ourselves together again, now in an unfamiliar setting. Most of us had changed over the summer and every face was new to us. Again we went through the process of "fitting in."

Then as Juniors we prospered, making fun of the now-so-small Sophomores and envying the departing Seniors. At the end of our Junior year, we faced the death of our beloved principal Mr. Heffley, and learned another lesson in life.

Mr. Saulsberry has come as our new principal, to guide us through our hardest and easiest year. Many of us have begun the college admissions process, frantically searching for a school to prepare us for our futures, others are thinking about jobs or other choices for the year after graduation. However, this time when we leave, wherever we go; we will not forget the High School, our High School. Felix Yin ('94)

Catching up on some studying, Pedro Ponce de Leon and Jason Kaden found a comfortable place to sit during their open.

Up against the gray, Finnerty and Finn (Erin and Katie) play it cool.

More Choices

For most Sophomores the change from the Junior High school to the High School was easy. They found that it was easier to get around than at the Junior High. They generally had good impressions of the High School. Although there is more homework, they like most of their classes better. The classes are larger and there are more choices of what classes to take.

The Juniors, meanwhile, have finally become "upperclassmen". They are enjoying being able to choose all of their classes and not having specific requirements. The Juniors are beginning to think about what they want to do after High School. Both the Sophomores and the Juniors are taking advantage of the many extracurricular activities offered at the high school.

Andrea Ratner ('96)

Making the best of her open, junior Gabi Kruks-Wisner grins over a pile of homework.

Satisfied after a tasty lunch, sophomores Kai Bicknell, Katie Bonsignore, Molly Thomas, and Rhiana Swartz await the bell.

Earning his paycheck, junior Scott Gladu pumps gas at the Mobil station.

Enjoying a leisurely Sunday morning, Elffin Burrill relaxes in front of Bart's

Laughing loveably at lunch, sophomores Josh McCusker, Jen Bastable, and Maya Walker lounge leisurely.

Junior Lena Fletcher grins as she does her chemistry homework on a warm fall day.

Most students, like Bryn Canner, enjoy the time they can spend in the art room.

Going over her paper one more time, Lynn Czerwonka gets to enjoy a little of the fall weather.

On his way to school, Jeremy Zabko stops to have his coffee cup filled.

So that they won't forget the good times they've had, Gabe Sayer, Mariah Peelle, Liz Feldman and Caleb Peelle take lots of pictures on a beautiful fall day.

Brendan McKenna sure seems to be enjoying his summer work at Camp Woodstock.

Dedication

Gaylord F. Saulsberry and Lorraine V. Kavanagh

"Let's see what we can do." Ms. Kavanagh has spoken these words many times. She is always willing to try to work a situation out in a way that would most benefit each of us. She is deeply dedicated to her job, and to us, her students.

Ms. Kavanagh is resourceful and a rational thinker, two qualities which have made this school run smoothly for over twelve years. As Instructional Director she is dependable, and efficient. Whether we need a class rescheduled or level changed, or someone to talk to about a problem, she is always there to help.

Ms. Kavanagh is kind and approachable. She almost always has a smile on her face, unless deep in thought. She is warm, helpful and worthy of confidence. The kindness which one feels when approaching her put everyone at ease.

Mr. Saulsberry has brought respect and prestige to Amherst Regional High School, both in his year as interim principal, and throughout the many years in which he taught in the Social Studies department. his passion for history, his concern for his students, and his love for teaching makes him a valued member of the high school community.

When thinking of Mr. Saulsberry most of us think of his presence, his awesome manner of speaking, and his overall dignified nature. Many people look to Mr. Saulsberry as a role model.

In this past year, Mr. Saulsberry and Ms. Kavanagh have maintained the order and quality of this school, and continued to make it a place in which we feel comfortable learning.

Mr. Saulsberry and Ms. Kavanagh represent the best qualities of Amherst Regional High School and this is why we dedicate this 1993-1994 yearbook to them.

STOP & SHOP

In our school we house the theatre company, six musical groups, and over twenty-five clubs. These widely varied options are open to not only the High School, but the Junior High as well.

These clubs stem from various interests. Some arise from interest advisors have, some from interests of the students, and yet others from a merging of the two. The uniqueness of our clubs lies in the variety and in the opportunity we're given to expand and invent new activities. One could find any club in this school which appeals to his or her needs, or, if not, there is always the option of starting a new one.

Our musical groups provide the same type of options. We have a jazz band, wind ensemble, symphony band, concert choir, chorale, and a string orchestra. In surveying this wide variety of options, one can see that there is flexibility also in the type and style of music from which we can choose. The performances by these groups are open to both the school and the town, and they provide an important cultural backdrop to this community.

The theatre company, as well, gives students another opportunity to express themselves in a non-academic way. They are responsible for putting on a barrage of productions throughout the year, including our annual student writtens. These plays are written by, directed by, and acted by, students in our school.

One characteristic that all of these groups share is that they bring students together on a level that goes beyond academics, promoting peer support, unity, empowerment, and school spirit.

Imani Romney-Rosa ('94)

What'll You Bid for a Purple Octopus?

This year's annual cake sale was a huge success as members of Amherst Regional High School came out with their stomachs empty and their pockets full. The type of cakes sold ranged from traditional layer cakes with fancy designs to a large purple octopus. Even the teachers got involved in the bidding as Mr. Adams walked around with a hand full of money. As Mr. Adams got into the spirit of the auction, some cakes were sold for as much as $25.

Having a cake sale like Amherst allows the teachers, students and administrators to come together. In the auditorium, one group of friends not only put all their money together to buy a cake, but they all bid together as they all stood up and shouted at once. A group of friends gathering together to purchase a cake has been a long standing tradition of the ARHS cake sales.

As the cakes were all sold and the auditorium emptied, the cafeteria became the next area of congregation. Students could be seen digging their hands into their new purchase and proceeding to stuff their faces. And so ended another successful cake sale.

Sarah Levy ('95)

Eager to buy a cake, one student anxiously puts in his bid.

Master of Ceremonies Gabe Barbaro auctions off a cake as Rita Powell and Sara Orellana hold it up for display.

Anticipating his first bite, sophomore Alex Forbes digs into his cake.

Seniors Howard Koss and Chris Gagnon partake in the traditional cake sale ritual of stuffing food into your friend's mouth.

Look, but don't touch? This year's cakes were scrumptious enough to satisfy even the biggest sweet tooth.

This year's cake sale was a great success. Even this guy looks a little stuffed.

Thou shalt not covet they neighbor's cake . . . sophomore Molly Thomas and Andrew Woglom ponder this probing dictum.

An Experiment in School Spirit: Spirit Week '93

The entire school came together for one week this year to celebrate school spirit. The concept was relatively new, but it was enthusiastically adopted by both staff and students. The themes of the week included Hat Day, Formal Day, and Twins Day an idea embraced by the members of the staff, who dressed in matching shirts and ties. Friday afternoon the entire school gathered in the gymnasium, not only to honor fall sports, but to arouse school spirit as well. The next day students, parents, staff, and alumni gathered at Community Field to cheer the Hurricanes on to a victory over Chicopee in the traditional Homecoming Day game. The success of Spirit Week '93 was a welcome change after many years of school-cynicism at ARHS.

During the Pep Rally, Mr. Saulsberry mingles with the students.

During the homecoming game, senior Bob Zakaitis breaks for the hole.

Quarterback Alan Maziarz shouts commands at his team in hopes for perfect execution of the play.

Amherst fans watch eagerly as the team completes a play.

Life After High School

As alarming as it may sound, there is life after high school, and for more than three quarters of the senior class that means learning about the real world through higher education. Fortunately, they had a little help this year when ARHS played host to the 1993 Hampshire County Higher Education Fair. Representatives from about 150 colleges, universities, and branches of the armed service packed the gymnasium from 7:30-9:00 p.m. on October 20th; each institution offered a table with brochures, catalogues, and literature. Interested students traveled from table to table asking questions and learning what the colleges had to offer them.

Guidance counselors from eleven local school took part in organizing the fair, though, as the host school, Amherst handled the lion's share of the responsibilities. The National Honor Society and People of Color United lent their services as well, along with several student volunteers.

Everyone who attended left with enough glossy brochures to keep them busy perusing for a month, and those who didn't know their social security number by heart when they came in certainly had written it on enough mailing lists to have it memorized by the time they left. Those who didn't have a clue about their future before hand got a lot of good ideas, and those who thought they had things mapped out were presented with enough interesting options to send them back to square one. Perhaps that's the first lesson about the real world which higher education has to teach us.

Noah Smith ('94)

Juniors Jessi Anthony and Carrie Adrion start planning their college career early.

After helping serve the dinner before the fair, Deborah Ihedigbo, Sadie Burnham, and Imani Romney-Rosa get a chance to enjoy their meal.

NHS volunteers Sarah Cutchins and Melisa Ruiz help bring in supplies, while Lucy Gillers and Sarah Torrey stand by the doors welcoming people to the college fair.

Lynda Czerwonka and Amara Okoroafor share a personal joke before setting off to plan their future.

With stars in their eyes, Jacob Fine, Elena Maitese-Blount, Emily Riddle and Sarah Collins harmonize in "Age of Aquarius."

Masters of Ceremonies Ariana Inglese and Noah Smith give entertaining introductions to the musical acts.

Thinking about warm summer days in the dead of winter can be difficult, but this group of singers, AKA, the Mamas and the Papas, joyfully spread their wishful thinking in "Callifornia Dreamin'."

You say potayto, I say potahto . . . " sings senior Josh Copen to Emily Lebert in their duet, "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off."

Even if life is a Cabaret, who said you could call me chum?

Being elected emcees of Cabaret 1994 was a tremendous honor for Ari Inglese and me. And, though difficult as it was to fill the shoes (almost literally) of Nick Hoffa and Piper Sullivan, we think everyone involved pulled together a great show. Of course all Ari and I had to do was introduce the fabulous acts which constituted the evening. The real work was in learning lyrics, music and choreography in just two weeks, not to mention baking and bringing desserts and waiting tables so our patrons could enjoy a classical Cabaret atmosphere.

This year's selections included show tunes ("We go Together", "At the Ballet"), pop songs (Heartache Tonight," "California Dreamin'"), and a couple of comedy skits ("The Dead Parrot Sketch," "Whack's World"). A few numbers were solos ("Love me Tender," "Play the Music for Me"), but the acts of two or more people really epitomized the Cabaret spirit. Opening up a fund-raiser for the Chorale to all students brings in dozens of auditioners looking for their chance to perform, and blends them all together into a cohesive unit. Only a strong group could have persevered through two school cancellations, a postponed performance and a canceled one.

Great as the talent was, we couldn't have done it without help from some diligent students such as Zoe Teegarden (food), Jules Bowie (lights and roses), and our stage manager Christina Dann. We also thank the custodians and school administration, all our parents and of course Mr. Murray who picked the numbers, directed the show, played the piano and even joined the performers on stage for the big finale, "Freedom."

Just one question remains: how did Michael Jackson get in there?

Noah Smith ('94)

Brandishing their canes and grins, Sasha Clayton, Willl Matthews and Eli McKenna-Weiss accompany each other in "You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile."

No Shortage of Stars

Ever wonder about those hoards of people in the lobby or outside B-2 after school waiting for rehearsals to begin, practicing their lines, and talking about ordering pizza? And what about the dedicated individuals who always seem to be in the auditorium, usually up on a ladder or yelling to each other about needing a wrench? Even if you never have the experience of being one of these people, you are probably familiar with the Theatre Company and the plays they put on throughout the year, the Theatre Company is the largest, and one of the most flexible, groups in school. Though there seems to be a core group who can't seem to tear themselves away from the stage, other actors and techies — from all the high school classes, and even a few freshman — come and go as they like.

Though some of our talent graduated last year, this season moved ahead smoothly, with only a few reminisces about the legacy that they left behind. In our first shows, the offbeat "Approaching Zanzibar," and recently unearthed "A Jovial Crew," however, it was evident that Theatre Company will have no shortage of new stars to keep the shows on. Our fifth musical, "Carousel," followed these (and a new era certainly has begun for this, our biggest show of the season), and the Tenth Annual Student Written Play Festival, in the spring, gave our school's hidden playwrights a chance for fame. (Also planned, as of this writing, is the second annual children's show, which will tour the elementary schools.)

We're always looking for new people to get up on ladders and deliver monologues for us, not to mention stay at rehearsals long into the night and risk injury by falling sets (uncommon-really!). Despite these dangers, Theatre Company is a great group to produce a play with, and the auditorium doors are always (?) open, so feel free to come on in.

And hey, if the phone rings, I did order a calzone!

Carousel

With the many canceled rehearsals due to snow it didn't feel like June Was Busting Out All Over and a clambake was the furthest things from our minds yet somehow we succeeded. With only a few months to prepare we worked hard to pull of Carousel. We were amazed that the Carousel turned and the back wall was fully covered with paint.

For the guys the hornpipe proved that all the strenuous warm-ups weren't for nothing and the girls became dizzy with all their spinning the waltz.

We learned that there is nothing so bad for a woman as a man who is good or bad. Jigger impressed us with his Elvis-like seduction and fireman impersonation while Enoch amused us with his ideas of romance, a pocket full of seeds.

Overall we thought it was a real/-nice show.

Unity and Brotherhood

The A Better Chance program is a non-profit organization that takes students who have excelled academically in inner city schools and places them in highly competitive schools to enhance their chances of being accepted to the college of their choice.

While attending the ABC program we have obtained a valuable education through our interactions with other students, tutors, directors, and board members. The unity and brotherhood found in the house reinforces the great emphasis placed on family.

Eight young men reside in the ABC house. Seniors: Kent Dunn and Derrick Franklin; juniors: Orville (JR) Reynolds, Moises Nunez, and Luis Rosario; sophomores: Salvador Campos, Roger Garay, George Sierra. All are from New York City with the exception of Derrick Franklin, who is from Washington, D.C.

It was very difficult for everyone this year because with new students also came new resident directors and tutors. The resident directors are Rosamaria Calderon and Alfredo Chapelliquen; English tutor, Karen Condon; Math tutor, Paul Peelle, and Activities Director, Stephen Jackson.

"ABC has made us more independent in making decisions that helps us stand as individuals" said Derrick Franklin.

Kent Dunn reflected that "Leaving the ABC house will be equally joyful and sad: sad in that I will be leaving those very special to me and joyful because my experiences as an ABC student has opened many doors for me." Kent Dunn.

Many Voices

The ARHS Concert Choir and Chorale both began the year in good hands, under the skillful direction of our new director of high school choirs, Mr. Jessel Murray. Dan Bifano, a bass in both singing groups, praised the new director, saying: "Mr. Murray just has a way to get through to the kids. He is a very talented man."

Both groups have sung a variety of music, as Chorale member Ari Inglese explains, "ranging from classical European arrangements to South African freedom songs." Concert Choir member Cara Connolly is also pleased to see the "good selection of songs, because the variety makes class very interesting." Jamie Munger, an alto in Chorale, likes the program because, "different kinds of people are all connected through their common interests in music and singing; it's a way of uniting us." Chorale tenor Gabe Barbaro feels that he is "involved in the finest musical program that a high-schooler could take," and Noah Smith says, "though I'm not a Concert Choir or Chorale member, I respect (Mr. Murray) as an artist, and the work I've done with him in Cabaret and the musical have been very rewarding."

The concert schedule has been very full this year, including the Concert Choir's joint concerts with the Chorale and Ninth Grade Chorus, and the Chorale's Lasagna Dinner at the beginning of the year. The Chorale also sang at Grace Church three times: a concert with a featured harpist, a performance at an observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, and at the annual Madrigal Dinner. The Choral's spring tour will be in Vermont, and the climax of harmonies will be reached when both groups sing during the final musical concert at Buckley Recital Hall.

Banding Together

Well, first things first: Unfortunately, there was no Wind Ensemble/Orchestra trip this year . . . but at least our memories of last year's trip to Montreal still linger — the long bus rides, bad jokes, dancing to live jazz, and of course, Michele.

This year, although we did not see the rise of computerized music stands, many changes came to the Wind Ensemble. We got a new mascot, who could be seen hovering outside in the hall during C period. Our new president gamely took on the expanded duties of that office, conducting warm-ups and keeping us in order(?) while waiting to go on stage. Our one man band toned down his solo career, and even learned the meaning of "mp" (Hint: it's not "mighty powerful"). Also, thanks to the Invasion of the Ninth Graders, we were able to enjoy the sounds of an oboe, two bassoons, and several trombones and horns. On the other hand, for several months we had to endure the blasts of sub-zero air as we let them into the band room.

Jazz Workshop, Symphony Band, and Wind Ensemble all benefited from the skilled and occasionally surprising direction of Mr. Purcell (does he really want a more "horny" sound?). He helped us conquer the eccentricities of our instruments, improve our skills, work on our musicianship, and maybe even play the right notes. In spite of having to carry heavy instrument cases on crowded buses, deal with bad reed days, and run frantically to reach our next class in time after Mr. Purcell's slightly-too-late dismissal, we all had a lot of fun and learned to work together successfully. All you innocent bystanders remember the great music provided by the Jazz Workshop during B lunch, and if you made it to any concerts this year, you know that hard work all around paid off with satisfying performances of challenging music.

Orchestrated Harmonies

Throughout the year, the senior orchestra performed numerous pieces by a variety of composers, from Tchaikovsky to Hindemith. Although rehearsals for our seasonal concerts are intense, the results are always pleasing, as you know if you attended any of our five melodious concerts. With Patrick Smith's enlightening analogies and interesting jokes, I think all the students in orchestra playing more that it appears.

Being one of the largest bodies in all the years that Senior Orchestra existed, the orchestra provides a full resonant sound for all to enjoy. Especially for those students who have B period open.

Publishing in Style

The amazingly flawless and inspirational guidance of Jason Root and Sasha Clayton allowed The Graphic to reach undreamed of heights this year. The Graphic won "High School Newspaper of the Year" awards from the Boston Globe, The New York Times, and The Weekly World News. Then, as if that weren't enough, they were invited to dinner and three games of bowling with President Clinton.

All right, so I'm lying, they didn't win any incredible nonexistent awards, but they did take first place in the layout and design category of the Yankee Pen contest at Northeastern. In addition to winning prizes, The Graphic has continued to be an excellent outlet for the ideas, creativity, and complaints of Amherst High students.

Syntax, the school's literary magazine, has also been a wonderful forum for the writing, photography, and art of students. Artists and photographers for the literary magazine are given more freedom to draw or shoot what they want than they would have working for The Graphic. The same applies to the writing in Syntax which is well known as being very deep and expressive.

The school's yearbook, The Goldbug, is a somewhat more conservative publication. The Goldbug, however, is the only publication that features color photos, and this makes it very visually impressive. In addition to this, members of the yearbook staff have been bragging about their cover practically all year. However, the yearbook's main purpose is a social one. After all, how would we all get through those last few weeks of school without the joy of getting our yearbooks singed by every last person in the school?

Nothing Is Ever Predictable . . . Except Fun

"I've been with the Outing Club for two weeks, and I've been tied up four times; this is not the kind of bonding I expected."

Nothing with the Outing Club is ever predictable, except guaranteed fun of one kind or another on every trip. Besides amusement with ropes this fall, there were also two caving trips, an overnight on a nearby mountain, various local hikes, and in the tradition of last year (hopefully to be carried on in other years), another Green Mountain backpacking trip. This winter there was cross-country skiing, a winter backpacking/overnight, and wall climbing in preparation for the rock climbing and ropes course activities that took place in the spring, along with grand old Lake George.

"To learn what makes a group tick and what I can do to make it tick better!"

That was only part of what the 13 Cherubs of Leadership Training learned, by meeting six Friday nights and three days over February break. "I learned that hot lemonade heated on a fire that we made under shelter we built is the best tasting thing in the world." Lena learned: "I am responsible for my inclusion." "I learned that there is a fine line between using the strengths of the group and relying too much on one person." "I learned how much (a few people's) mind set really affects a group's members' behaviors and abilities-moods, too." And, the most profound discovery of all: "When we knocked down a tree, we had a hole in the ground." . . . of course we'll never forget running around in bare feet in two feet of snow! Ohhh, that's cold!!!!

These were all valuable lessons, which we enjoyed seeing you all learn. Keep on with your amazing discoveries, we can tell you'll all go far!

Love, Beth, Star, Zoe and Charlie (your proud facilitators)

Everyone congratulates Charlie on a successful trust fall.

Working together, the group pulls Jason Kaden up the cliff.

Cultural Diversity

Amherst Regional High School is a culturally diverse school. Groups such as people of Color United (P.O.C.U.), Latinos Unidos, the International Students Club, and the Cambodia Club have it as their main goal to educate the people around them about the beauty and uniqueness of each of these different cultures. Through activities such as culturally aware dinners, dances and fairs, they not only educate others on their many different ethnicities, but reinforce their own pride and knowledge of their own cultures. By knowing yourself you can better help others to understand you. Through understanding we can achieve harmony.

Looking Towards the Future

As Amherst students start to think about what they want to pursue in their future, they look to the guidance of their peers and advisors. For those students who wish to study business or politics, there is another area of guidance that is available to them. Model United Nations and Future Business Leaders of America are simulations of real life situations to give students an idea of what business and international politics are truly like.

Both FBLA and Model UN have been active for a number of years. The FBLA members have come out full force this year in sponsoring the business education week JOBS 'R' US and for opening a school store. These projects were designed to involve, not only, the students, but the community as well. This has been extremely successful this past year with lots of student volunteers. The FBLA's weekly meetings are mostly student run to give the feeling of an actual board room meeting (except that it's a little more interesting and fun).

Model UN members participate in the same type of simulations as FBLA. The students are given international problems, similar to those dealt with in the real UN, and have to come up with solutions and ideas in partnership with each other. These proposals are then to be discussed at a yearly assembly. High school students from Western Massachusetts gather at these assemblies to debate each of the ideas and decide who has come up with the most reasonable and fair solutions. One member commented that it was a great experience because it allows for interesting discussion and an opportunity to meet new people. Members of Model UN get to take a trip to the UN where they get a chance to meet United Nations representatives from various countries.

For those students who are unsure about what they want to pursue in their future, stop by an FBLA and/or Model UN meeting and take a look at some beneficial options.

Service to the Community

Community Service involves accepting the civic responsibility a school has to its community. At Amherst Regional High School there has always been a vigorous quest for excellence in community service. Whether educating people about drinking and driving or helping collect funds for the homeless and needy, the students of Amherst Regional have always been there to help. This year the high school has seen a huge increase in student involvement with the community.

Earlier this year the high school had the honor of hosting the regional college fair. Its purpose was to introduce students and their families to the many different colleges and to the entire experience of pursuing a higher education. At the same time, however, it tested the unity and school spirit of the student body. To say the least, the strong turnout and presentation of the volunteers for the college fair impressed the visitors. These volunteers not only consisted of members of clubs such as the Robert Frost Chapter of The National Honor Society, The Futures Business Leaders of American, and people of Color United, but of many dedicated and spirited individuals. It was a rare occasion to see so many students joined together to serve the community and their school. It is this kind of service that many of the individuals and clubs within the high school reach for. And it is this kind of service that makes the world a better place in which to live.

More Than Just a Class

Some of the most common languages spoken in the world are English, French, German, Russian, and Chinese. In ancient times Latin and Greek were spoken by millions. Amazingly, all of these languages are offered at Amherst Regional High School. And they are important to students here. Many feel that they give a different perspective. Kate Fried, a senior feels, "there are a lot of differences in the world and studying foreign languages gives students an opportunity to learn about and understand other cultures."

Not only do ARHS students take the language classes, but many also join a language club. These clubs all share a common bond, to learn more about the different cultures than would be possible in the classroom. If it is not a dance or a dinner on the agenda of a club, it's likely to be preparation for visiting a country. Many of the Russian language students once again were involved in a foray to Petrozavodsk, Russia after hosting the Russians from that city in the fall. Languages and the clubs connected to them truly benefit all involved.

"Lay on" Boffing club member, Jason Root prepares to do battle at one of the weekly boffing practices.

Fantasy of Medieval Times

It was a grotesque and putrescence night. Gooey moss hung from the rafters of the ancient castle. As Re-uven and his belligerent henchmen entered the foreboding castle they came face to face with the last group of mercenaries who had dared to raid Castle Roogna, swinging from the rafters oozing pus and blood. Re-uven wiped his sweaty forehead with his sleeve and drew his sword, feeling adrenaline pump through his veins. This was not going to be easy.

This may sound like the script of a medieval horror movie, but it could also be a particularly gory scene from a boffing quest. Such emotional quests are commonplace for members of the Medieval Reenactment Society.

Despite its outward appearance of being a club of violent vicious teenagers who only want to bash each other's brains in, MRS is really quite sophisticated. The club is basically a fantasy version of medieval times. In addition to testosterone-crazed hulking heroes, there are bards, thieves, peasants, magicians, gypsies, and royal personages.

In addition having two meetings per week, MRS held a day long event at the high school. Being a boffing club member is a big time commitment as the events that most club members go to last for at least six hours, but for those who enjoy bashing people with swords, or like to read poetry with medieval themes, or just like to relive the Middle Ages, it's worth it.

Students Helping Students

The Peer Education Program gives students an opportunity to develop and improve interpersonal skills, examine attitudes, and gain information around issues relevant to young people: e.g. decision making, peer pressure, substance abuse/addiction, sexuality issues, and more. Students involved in this program must be willing to serve as positive role-models to elementary and secondary students as they present informational workshops.

After successfully completing the Peer Education Program and an application/interview process, students are assigned to the counseling center for one period each day. The purpose of this center is for students to be of peer support, serving as a resource regarding issues ranging from stress, relationships, violence, drugs, and sexuality. These students are also allowed to give out condoms and informational pamphlets to students requesting such.

Peer Mediation is a form of non-violent problem solving. During a mediation session two peer mediators sit down with the disputants who have agreed to a mediation. Through open ended questioning and paraphrases, the goal of mediation is for the disputants to be able to identify their needs and come to resolution regarding their conflict. Mediators are not counselors and do not give advice; they merely assist disputants in coming to a peaceful solution on their own. The mediation process is voluntary and information shared is confidential. A student must complete extensive mediation training prior to assignment as a Peer Mediator.

Mental, Not Physical, Abilities

Our school has lots of great athletic teams, but there are also several less visible competitive teams at ARHS. These are the teams in which mental, not physical, abilities are the key: the Chess, Mathletes, JETS TEAM+S, and As Schools Match Wits teams. Obscure? Perhaps. Unsuccessful? No. The Mathletes may have had a rocky season, but they still came in No. 2 in Western Mass and qualified for the State meet. Last year's JETS TEAM+S Jr. Varsity squad did well solving engineering-related problems, and came in first in Western Mass. Many members returned to compete again this year at both the Jr. and Sr. Varsity levels. The Chess Team was also highly successful, placing first in the state with an undefeated record. And finally, two new and two returning members of the As Schools Match Wits team combined their skills to reach a winning record. And hard as it may be to believe after such great statistics, all these teams manage to fit in some fun between their wins. As anyone who's ever been to a math meet can tell you, there's nothing quite like enjoying the fruits (er, make that doughnuts) of one's labor after the competition. Thanks to all the advisors and students involved with our academic teams for making it such a great year.

People

On the average school day, Amherst Regional High School is a place filled with activities you'd see in any typical school. Teachers teaching, students learning, adminstrators adminstering, musicians and athletes playing. People laughing, talking, yelling, thinking, reading. But for us, these are not just average people in a typical school. Here are human beings we have come to know, the students, faculty, and staff who have become special to us, who have, in ways great and small, helped shape our lives. Even those whom we don't know personally are connected to us through the networks of our friendships and responsibilities. As in any school, there is much at ARHS to be learned, many courses and lessons. The greatest enduring lesson, though, may be how to recognize and appreciate this gift of people, each one different and with something to teach or show us. Learning to appreciate others, and to treat them with compassion and respect, will be vital for us, whatever choices we make in life.

Seniors

All right. It's January 20, 9:00 p.m., 8 degrees below zero, and I'm staring at a blank computer screen. Mrs. Stendahl asked me to write a 200-300 word essay for the yearbook about our class, the class of 1994. How is one supposed to sum up an entire high school career in 200-300 words, without sounding cliché? Not an easy task, so here goes . . .

I have no idea what the remaining months will hold for our class. Hopefully we will come to appreciate each other, know each other, and respect each other before we walk across the stage of the Mullins' Center on June 9. Hopefully we will raise enough money to have a successful talent show and prom. Hopefully we will all succeed in all our planning for the future, and hopefully we will make it through the exhausting college admissions process. I know realistically we won't accomplish all of these things, but I do hope for the best.

The days are gradually dwindling on our high school career, and homework, classes, and the usual day-to-day activities are all being looked at in the "grand scheme of things." But when you all walk across the stage that night, I will guarantee you all of your efforts will be worth while. No matter where your paths may lead you after high school, I wish you continued success. Good bye class of 1994, and good luck.

Juniors

Junior year is the turning point in our high school lives. No longer "little kids," we are given new freedoms and new worries. Our class really pulled together at Booster Day and made a fantastic exhibition — a tradition we plan to carry over to next year. Our cake sale was also a great success; almost thirty cakes were donated and every one was sold. The three-on-three basketball tournament and can drive were big spring successes, as was the formal dance and our community service project.

It is exciting, but also a little scary to look ahead and see that we only have one year left at ARHS. It will be our last year together for many of us who have been together since kindergarten. Since the time friendships have both weakened and grown, we've changed as individuals and as a group. We look forward to our senior year together.

Sophomores

The sophomore class has been busy trying to raise money for our class activities. Our small but dedicated Core committee has been hard at work coming up with many good fund-raising ideas. Assisted by our class advisors, Christina Higgins and Christine Clifford, the class of 1996 is off to a good start in our high school careers.

SPORTS

There are many people in this school who are dedicated to sports. Some participate one season out of the year, some two or three. More than eight hundred out of fifteen hundred different people, grades 7-12, participate in at least one season of sports. These are impressive figures.

One of the most outstanding characteristics of athletes is that they dedicate ten to fifteen hours a week to sports. That time could be spent doing many other activities, but they choose to focus on a sport which demands discipline and dedication.

We have the widest range of sports in western Masssachusetts. Because of this, our biggest challenge has been maintaining our program at a time when thousands of dollars have been cut from the athletic budget. After this huge budget cut all of our sports still remain, but it does take more effort on the part of the players and the coaches to maintain the quality of the teams. Once again we have accomplished this.

Throughout the trials presented before us, our athletics have triumphed, as have our athletes.

Imani Romney-Rosa ('94)

Achieving Our Goal

When the season ended with Western Mass — because the State Meet was really irrelevant — we all looked at each other with confusion. What now? We were thinking that we hadn't seen any of our other friends for the entire autumn because we'd spent so much time together. We had that feeling of emptiness that comes when you've spent a long time working for a goal and you've finally achieved it. We couldn't believe the season was over.

In late August, before we'd even raced once, a reporter said to our coach, Mr. Keene, "You actually think your team has a shot at Mass?" No one thought we would be able to do much of anything without the star seniors of last year. This year's team took that as a challenge, as an opportunity to show everyone (including ourselves) that by working together we could accomplish anything. By depending on the whole team's performance as opposed to individual stars, we transformed the sport into a team effort. We pulled together and won W MASS, as well as all of our regular season meets going undefeated for the 5th straight year. And, we had a lot of fun on the way.

When there were meets we had pasta parties, and when there weren't meets, we had disco parties and sleepovers. We ran RRR's (Rita — Rebecca — Runs) where we ran through fields rolled down hills and got free samples from Bananarama. We laughed as we listened to crazy 70's songs — "Say you'll always be my baby, we can make it shine. We can last forever just a minute at a time" almost became a theme song that said it all. It was a wonderful season that we'll never forget. Things to Remember: Spaghetti on the ceiling, "Mom" 'ow. "stop that!!" Let's talk tactics" "Billy & Kid" Crip When we kiss . . . FIRE!! A Fifth of Beethoven "Hey, wasn't that playing when we got out?" MORE THAN A WOMAN TO ME!!

Despite a long race, senior Shayna Seymour still manages to smile.

Concentrating on the race, senior Marlowe Knipes, junior Dawa Romito, and freshman Dave Patterson make excellent time.

Using his last bit of breath, Nate Goodwin runs towards the finish line.

Senior Brendan McKenna pushes on into the last minutes of the race.

Coach Crowley gives an encouraging word to C.J. Karch before the race.

Looking satisfied, Dorje Romito finishes well.

Better Than Expected

The Amherst Regional Boys' Cross-Country Team had a better than expected season this year. Led by veterans and newcomers, we finished 7-3 in the league, an improvement over last year's 6-4 record. Newcomer David Patterson, a freshman, and Dawa Romito should lead next year's pack. With many of the team's runners returning we should do relatively well in the future.

Isaac Souweine ran away with the Chowder-head award for this season. His continuously bad jokes helped him pull off the win, and the seniors look forward to seeing if Dorje can with the award next year.

The 1993 season brought with it many memories. Some of these include: Suicide runs, Mama Knipes and the Knipes Bakery, perimeters from hell, Tootsie Roll Pops and other lollipops (it is amazing how many different ways you can use them as weapons), Tornado Alley and Silver Bridge and the coach's running films. This year a new feature was added to the cross-country experience — team stretches with Coach Wexler.

Thanks to Coach Crowley from the seniors for another great season. Good luck to the team in the future!

A Bright Future

The ARHS Girls' Soccer team improved a lot this season, obtaining their first win in two years. However, the focus was not only on improvement in the field, as the soccer team put forth a great deal of effort to create a well rounded program. We received support from parents and the rich soccer community of this area.

Many of the girls felt that the highlight of our season was practicing with Jim Rudy and the UMass women's soccer team, as well as going to their games. The UMass women are an inspiration and their support of our program improved our team's confidence, which in the past has been one of our greatest obstacles.

The team will be losing four seniors, but the future is bright for girls' soccer at ARHS. With new jerseys and Erin Cheney's good luck socks, everyone is looking forward to next season.

Showed Promise

The boys' soccer team struggled to a 1-16-1 record this year. Although it was a disappointing season for everyone, our team showed a lot of promise and even managed to dominate some games. Senior midfielder Caleb Peelle said, "Despite the trials and tribulations of our season, we occasionally put that sucker in the back of the net . . . at least in practice."

The high points of the season included our victory over Westfield (who had only one other loss all season), a tie in our night game against East Longmeadow, and strong showings against Central and Cathedral (who was ranked fourth in the nation). The team received great play from sophomore forward Nate "Prodigy" Adams, junior goalkeeper Brian Murch, and senior sweeper Chris Gagnon, who played every minute of the season. The team has high hopes for the future with three sophomores, many strong juniors and a lot of talent coming up from junior varsity. Gagnon says, "Next year, the team should do better."

We would like to give our thanks to Mr. Gralinski, who is retiring as head coach, for all the work he has put into the Amherst Soccer program. We would also like to thank Debbie Lawrence and all of our other fans who managed to sit through our games.

Memories from the season: "Work the Chicken", "Good Evening", Bruce's car, Karl "The Mailman", Labrador, High Cholesterol.

With their strong defense, the Amherst Hurricanes prepare to stop their opponents.

In a group huddle, members of the football team plan their next line of attack.

Co-Champions

The tradition started when this year's seniors were freshmen. That year, Coach Tom Cullen took over the program. Over the next four years, the players from the class of 1994 have learned the tradition and built it up to a point that most people thought it would never reach — a championship.

This past fall the Canes recorded their first winning season in 14 years. They finished at 6-4, going 4-2 in league games. The 4-2 league mark gave the team a share of the Suburban League Championship, and some well deserved pride and respect.

Amherst relied on a stingy defense and a balanced offense to carry them through the season. Their defense was ranked third in Western Mass., allowing an average of just 12.5 points per game. In addition, opponents' defenses had trouble stopping the Canes' offense, for Amherst could move the ball on the ground and in the air with success.

The team loses several outstanding seniors this year. This is a group of seniors who have spent many winters and summers lifting weights and running; now they can only hope that their success will be an example for future Hurricane teams to follow.

The football team dedicated its season to two irrepolaceable contributors to the football program, Jack Heffley and Karen Kudrikow, both of whom passed away just before the start of the season.

A Solid Season

The Amherst Field Hockey team managed to overcome the loss of ten players and numerous injuries to have a very successful year. At the beginning of the season, coaches, and news-writers labeled it a "rebuilding" year for the Hurricanes, yet the team ended its season with an overall record of 13-4-1, a league record of 12-3-1 and a tournament record of 1-1. Tasmyn Green, Meghan Reid, and Liz Feldman led the Canes with 22, 15, and 9 goals. Sarah Hursh had a solid season as a midfielder, and Mariah Peelle, Anne Dauchy, and Tani Wilson proved to be the backbone of the team's defense. The best moments of the season weren't just on the field, but during practices and bus rides when the real spirit, enthusiasm, and unity of the team shined. The six departing seniors bid farewell to the team, and coach to Jane Keyes-Ames, and wish them luck in the seasons to come.

Working Hard and Having Fun

The Amherst gymnastics team had an excellent season this year. We improved on last years record with 18 wins and 2 losses. Our team won Division C and 5th in Western Mass. Gymnasts, Cynthia Gordon and Kerry Scott, made All-Western Mass and individuals.

With two new coaches and a handful of dedicated gymnasts we worked hard and had fun. We hope that next year's gymnasts too will have as much fun and success as we all did this season. Always remember: Penny tossing, disappearing chalk, scratching the floor, interrupting cow, singing and cheering on the bus, you guys . . . you guys . . .

Surprising Everyone!

The Girls Varsity Volleyball team has surprised everyone this year, with nine wins and seven losses. In the beginning of the season, the team started out doing lots of push-ups, sit-ups, letdowns, suicides, Hills, block-jumps and runs around Wildwood. All of this paid off because we won many of our games by the endurance we had built up. Another strength came from our two team captains, Thea Moruzzi and Erica Gilbert. We had a good season this year, and since there are no seniors on the team, so no one will be leaving making us even stronger next year.

A New Beginning

This year was a new beginning for the boys' volleyball team. There were a lot of new faces. With only a few returning players from last year, the team suffered greatly from inexperience, but all the players improved a lot through intense an enthusiastic practices. The player who were new to the sport grew and improved their skills step by step, showing a hope to be a future Western Mass. Champion.

The greatest moment of the season was the game against Franklin Tech., which brought our one and only victory. Perhaps our biggest achievement was that every player gave his best effort to become a better player.

Good Luck!

Shinya Kinuta prepares to hit the ball, with excellent form.

For yet another point, this Amherst player spikes the ball.

Waiting for their game to begin. Roum Pen and Nip Loc watch the junior varsity game.

Moving quickly to the ball, Jacob Holber-Pill returns a serve.

Concentrating intently, Roum Pen gets beneath the ball.

Defenseman Mike "Nick" Pelak mixes it up along the boards.

Captain Rich Ferro (17) lets one fly.

Captain Jeff Watson unloads.

Defenseman Scott Rathbun hustles up the ice behind the play.

Brian Crutch looks for an open teammate.

'Canes On Ice

At the time of this writing the Hurricanes are once again in the middle of another good year. With a record of 12-2 the 'Canes are looking for that elusive WMass title. This team may be one of the strongest ever at Amherst and certainly one of the most experienced. Even though three players were lost to private schools, the team still returned six players with at least three years of varsity experience.

With a high scoring offense and a stingy defense the 'Canes once again will look to be the favorite come tournament time. Another victory over Cathedral (6-5) has highlighted the season so far. The 'Canes also won the Berry Division title this year for the first time in years.

Although the 'Canes lose a lot of seniors in '94 they will return a nucleus of underclassmen well capable of carrying on this tradition of success.

Entering a New Era

The girls' basketball team entered a new era this season.We had a lot of new faces and a few lingering veterans tossed together at the end of tryouts. Our common goal was to come together as a team and to qualify for the state tournament. So in our new practice jerseys we drilled our ballhandling, our penetration moves, and of course our elbow jumpers. Over December vacation we traveled to Augusta, Maine, where we played Cony High School in the Elvis Presley Civic Center. I forget how many points we won by. Over the next two months, we could pretty much count on a big snow storm on days of big games. But that didn't stop us from getting up for our games. We've met our goal of making the tournament and hope that our skills, preparation, and team unity will take us far.

A large part of the team will be graduating this year — Jackie (=shorty), Jade (crust), Nicole (Nikolie), Sophie (Sawf-ee) and Emily (Eemilye) S. We wish those of you staying behind the best!

Things to remember: Interior defense, penetration, goaltending, fronting in the low post, elbow jumpers, Jolly Joes/Mike & Ikes, warm-up tape that you can't hear, Central Florida vs. Maine!!, Aretha, FLEX, take it to the hole, Marvin, Juan, Jackie leaves behind the monsters, You wanna piece of this? Worship God More!

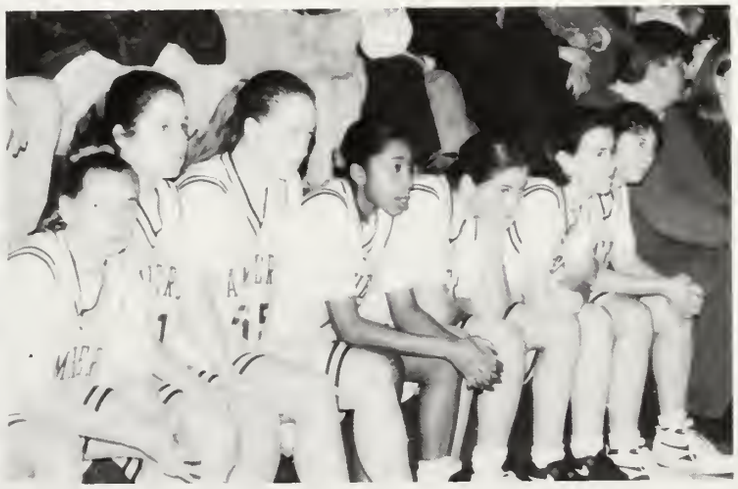
Senior Emily Shore gets a good look at the basket as she prepares to make a shot.

Using all her height, Emily Jones pushes the ball into Amherst's possession.

Noticing her opponents breakdown in defense Julie Stanitis manuevers a pass through her legs.



Members of the girls' basketball team (Jackie Roberts, Nicole Rife, Sophie King, Jade Sharpe, Lucia Maraniss, Von Shepard, Jessi Denis) look on as their teammates play.

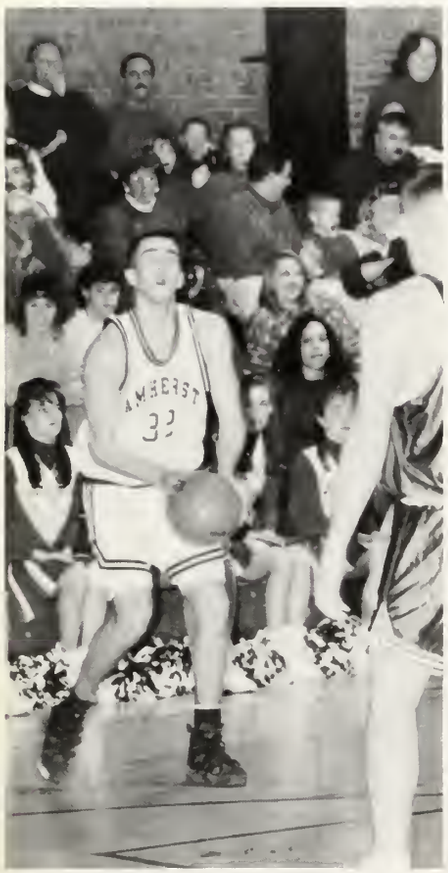
Using good ball control, senior Jade Sharpe dribbles past her opponents.

Demonstrating his skills, Enrique Sanchez moves with style to the basket.

Raising his has as if he's sure, senior Jamal Brown goes up strong for a block.

Displaying his acrobatic, ability co-captain Phil Robinson goes up for a shot.

Spotting up on the basket, Josh Kortright prepares to release a three.



Seniors: Eli Edinson, Alan Maziarz, Enrique Sanchez, Phil Robinson, Jamal Brown, Jamahl Jackson

Using his strength and skill, Justin Sorensen penetrates towards the basket.

Astounding Everyone!

The varsity Boys' Basketball team has had its ups (defeating Holyoke and Chicopee twice) and its downs (losing to Chicopee Comp and Northampton twice). The team has six seniors, four juniors, and two sophomores. The captains are two year veteran Phil Robinson, and three year veteran Jamahl Jackson. The other two returning players are senior Jamal Brown and junior Josh Kortright. The team this year gained eight new players and a new young fiery coach in Mike Thomas. After posting a mediocre regular season record of 11-9, and being ranked 10th in the playoffs we have astounded everyone, beating Chicopee Comp and upsetting the #2 Cathedral team. As of this writing, we have reached the final four, playing in the Springfield Civic Center and hoping for a Western Mass. Title.

A Dominating Team

Our domination takes hold at the outset of each match. Jesse Mosher starts things off with a 6 point pin for the first weight class. Our next 3 light weights keep the Amherst crowds cheering, and help to mentally break down our opponents. Then the rally starts, from 130 lbs. straight through to 171 lbs the Amherst Hurricane Wrestlers are an unstoppable freight train. If there was ever question about who would win the match, it becomes painfully clear for opponents at this point that Amherst will dominate.

Our winning team did not fall together by chance. We have spent many years in the making and many, many hours in the practice room. Here in the company of hard, disciplined work head coach, David Wintsch, we are trained to win not only the Western Mass title, but also the sportsmanship award.

Perhaps Dave's focus on sportsmanship is why I call the wrestlers not just teammates, but friends. I spent as much time off the mat with the wrestlers as I did on it which builds a close knit team. Someone is always there for you, helping you out or pushing you harder. We are a team of domination built on brotherhood (and sisterhood, with JV wrestler Emily Cayer) who have come a long way to stand tall with the best in Western Mass. At Western Mass, the team took second place, our best ever. We had three individual champions, Captain Sam Kline, Captain Kurt Pelz and Dawa Romito. Dave Wintsch was voted coach of the year.

The captains of the best Amherst Wrestling team will never be forgotten; thank you Sam Kline and Kurt Pelz. Special Thanks to managers Imani Romney-Rosa, and Cara Connolly. Thanks to the booster club, all the parents, all the fans, and all the other teams who have made us look so good.

Demonstrating the ultimate in skill, speed and form Kate Connelly goes for a first place finish.

Using both mind and body, Zak Katz powers down the slope to the finish line.

Ned Connelly shows precision as he cleanly weaves in and out of the gates.

Gregg Lithgow skillfully maneuvers himself around the gates to try and pull ahead of his competitors time.

Captain Lauren Schweid crouches down low to pick up speed as she glides to the bottom of the hill.

Training Hard

Both the boys' and girls' ski teams have trained hard. With surprisingly young and inexperienced teams we've been building up for next season.

The boys' team currently ranked 6th overall has been led by senior Jeff Mitrou, juniors Ned Connelly, Zak Katz, and freshman Seth Kassells. Team captains Greg Lithgow and Josh Wallace also contributed to the total team effort.

The girls' team, currently ranked 4th overall, has been led by junior captain Lauren Schweid and sophomore Kate Connelly. Kate has finished strong with consistent 2nd and 3rd place finishes.

Despite the standings, both teams have been working hard and improving. We're also looking forward to a great season next year. Bus trips back entertained us with Top Gun and Aladdin. Meat, Moo, Moo Moo II, Barf, MGD, Burp, and Bow Bow say hi to P.K. and Bill.

A Team with Depth

The Amherst Girls' Swimming team finished the season with a winning record of 6-4. We pulled together as a team more this year than in previous years with pasta parties to help psych us up for big meets. This newly found team relationship helped give us an edge in competition while many individual accomplishments also stood out. Among these was Sadie Wilcox's breaking the girls' diving record. Scoring higher than the ARHS boys' record. Senior Shayna Seymour finished off her last year with a third place finish in the 50 free at Western Mass. Our team had a lot of depth this year with the help of a few 7th graders to lead us to a 4th place Western mass. finish and a 6th place State finish. Sadly enough these 7th graders will not be joining us again next year.

Overall our season was very successful, but only with the help of Coach Jim O'Donnell to keep us focused on our goals. His words will live forever in our minds, teaching us the important lessons that dedication, determination, and hard work will lead to success.

Things to remember: pasta parties, sledding, snowball fights, penny awards, pool problems, pretzels, "swim in your own lane", "pain is temporary, pride is forever", black fingernails, tattoos, and most importantly — a swimming tip from Mr. O'Donnell: "Keep your left arm straight and your right arm bent!"

Mike Clifford may be having some trouble seeing as he approaches the far turn.

Scott Steinberg crashes home in the 100 yard Freestyle.

Surviving Yet Another Season

Hurricane boys' swimming managed to survive yet another season of exhausting practices and discouraging defeats under Coach O'D. Even after losing much of last year's talent, the twelve swimmers we did have stepped up and pulled off the same number of wins as last year's team: one. Despite the many snow days and pool problems we all managed to improve our times, and may have learned something in the process, (like the difference between "committed" and "interested"). We even had time for some fun on the side, from the pasta party at Kristen's house to the spirited return bus rides from away meets.

Don't forget: "I'm interested, how 'bout you?" "Kroodsma the energizer bunny (he keeps going and going . . .)" "I can't believe our bus driver broke the bus!" "Hey Carrie, who's Nuff?" "Stop whining, Bob" "When I was your age, I was much older!" and, of course, "Here's a dime, call someone who cares." Thanks for a great season O'D, and good luck to next year's swimmers. Remember, "If you don't want to swim with the big dogs, stay on the deck!"

Successful Intramural Season

This year marked our most successful intramural season ever! We played at our wonderful Fort River home, led by Tiina the Ultimate coach, her chair, and a countless number of captains. Four teams fought it out from September until November in the heat, sun, rain, mud and cold. The only low point of our season was the unfortunate passing of Packy the WonderDog.

The final was played on Veterans' Day, when we actually got to play at the high school field. In the end, it was the yellow team, led by Toby, Josh and Dan that beat the purple team (yellow wannabes), led by Pedro, Gabi and Jake. tied for third was the red team, captained by Jason, Sasha and Chris and the Blue team of Scott, Christina and Mac.

In addition, we had some friendly competition with Newton North, who drove all the way out here in the rain, only to lose to us as we ruined the soccer field (sorry, Mr. Collins).

In the spring we split into "A" and "B" teams. For the first time ever, the "B" team, led by a new coach, had cuts. We progressed and trained for our Ultimate victory at the tournament. On the way, we visited colleges in the area, because, let's face it, high school teams have become too easy for us!

From the seniors: Good-bye and good luck to Beavis, Butthead and the rest of the Ultimate underclass people and thanks for everything. We love you T.B.!

Showing pride in their team, captains Kristin Brunelle and Risha Hess cheer the Hurricanes on to Victory.

Stop, Look & Listen

This was definitely a successful rebuilding year — with only five returning seniors for the football season and two returning seniors for the basketball season. We had the help of our new coach, Mrs. Pinkney, and were able to show off our new uniforms. A lot of hard work and plenty of fun went into this year and we improved every game. Between camp and clinics we learned a lot.

For the first time in many years, both squads displayed dedication to the sport. Along with dedication we had support from the teams, coaches, parents, faculty and students. Trying to boost school spirit we held our second annual Spirit Week this fall. And despite the sophomore class winning the Hat Day competition we had a lot of participation throughout the school.

Thanks to both squads for giving us an enjoyable, unforgettable year (finally!). We'll miss everyone next year and we want to wish Molly, Shynia and everyone else good luck in the '94-'95 seasons.

From the Folks

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly.
You can hunt till you are dizzy, but it somehow will get by.
'Til the forms are off the presses, it is strange how still it keeps.
It shrinks down in the corner, and it never stirs or peeps.
The typographical error is too small for human eyes
'Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.
The boss just stares with horror, then he grabs his hair and groans.
The copy reader drops her head upon her hands and moans.
The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be,
But the typographical error is the only thing you sea!
